Welcome to the Graduate Student Conference

Dear Students

It is my distinguished pleasure to welcome you to the 5th ECPR Graduate Student Conference, a conference which achieved a record number of Paper proposals!

I am particularly pleased also because it takes place at the University of Innsbruck, with which I have strong personal and institutional links. While the impressive natural location will be apparent to you all, I am sure you will also take pleasure in the rich academic programme and the functional infrastructure.

This year's conference format has been designed to meet students' need to discuss the most pressing political and social issues of our time in an academically stimulating manner. The Call for Sections was open to suggestions aimed at making the conference programme more in tune with current developments in political research. Panels have been accepted or formed to help paper-givers create the most apt context for an engaged discussion of their work.

Not just an opportunity for graduate students to meet, talk and network, the GSC helps instil the academic ethic of commitment and mutual responsibility, and is supported by the Graduate Student Network, which nurtures the next generation of European political scientists.

Finally I would like to thank all those involved in the Academic Programme, especially the Section Chairs who have made a valiant effort to create Sections and Panels for what I am sure will be a memorable and successful conference.

Best wishes for a fruitful conference!

Simona Piattoni
Chair, ECPR Executive
Committee, 2012 – 2015

Dear Participants

On behalf of the ECPR I am delighted to welcome you to the Graduate Student Conference. The programme is packed with Panels covering topics that demonstrate the diversity and multi-disciplinarity of the ECPR community. We are very pleased to see such a broad scope of presentations and I believe that all participants will find something to support their scholarly development, as well as discussions and viewpoints that may challenge existing positions.

We hope you go away feeling that you have contributed to lively debates, that you learn something new about the world, and that networking opportunities lead to fruitful professional collaboration in the next stage of your career.

The organisers here in Innsbruck have worked very hard to ensure a rich and stimulating programme with academic and cultural activities for you to enjoy.

I will be available throughout the event to answer questions about the conference itself, and indeed about any of the forthcoming events in the ECPR calendar such as the Methods School, the General Conference in Glasgow, and of course the next Graduate Student Conference in Tartu, Estonia, in 2016.

I look forward to chatting with you over the coming days.

Mary Farrell
Academic Convenor,
Executive Committee,
Graduate Portfolio

Dear graduate students, colleagues, and guests

It is a great honour to welcome you to the 2014 ECPR Graduate Student Conference at our lovely SoWi-Campus.

The University of Innsbruck, founded in 1669, offers a huge variety of courses, from A (architecture) to Z (zoology)! This wide range of academic disciplines is a breeding ground for vibrant and multifaceted discussions across many fields of science, teaching and research. We are very proud to open this lively environment to students from all over the world.

The essence of a university is very complex, drawing from what goes on inside it, but also from the way it cooperates with external partners. It is in a state of constant change: the research projects and publications of our scientists, students and researchers contribute to this, as does the transfer of knowledge through our graduates into society and industry. International benchmarks in higher education, coverage in national and international media, as well as the economic conditions, all contribute to this dynamic educational environment.

Numerous rankings show that the University of Innsbruck regularly performs well in international terms, and the fact that the ECPR has chosen us to host this prestigious event confirms our University's appeal far beyond the geographical boundaries of Tyrol and Austria.

I am therefore very pleased to welcome you to Innsbruck, and I am sure that you will enjoy an exciting, productive stay.

Tilmann Märk
Rector,
University of Innsbruck

Dear Participants

Welcome to the Graduate Student Conference at the Innsbruck School of Political Science and Sociology!

Our goals are internationality and the encouragement of young scholars, both of which are reflected in this event. I am confident that your presentations and discussions will contribute to a thriving network of international scholarly communication.

You are at an important stage in your career. This conference will give you a high-visibility platform for the presentation of your research, and a gateway into the international scientific community. I very much hope that it will help set you on a path to a successful scholarly career.

Besides your intensive work at the conference, do take some time to enjoy our beautiful city and the surrounding mountains. I think it was Erwin Schrödinger who said that he had his most creative ideas when going for a walk on a slightly ascending path. Our alpine city offers many options for such idiosyncrasies!

I wish you inspiring, stimulating and communicative days here at our lovely and lively social-science campus – and some relaxing moments in our charming city of Innsbruck.

The University of Innsbruck

Founded in 1669, the University of Innsbruck – SoWi – is a public university that constitutes the biggest and most important research and education institution in western Austria

Today, the University boasts more than 27,500 students and over 4,500 staff and faculty members.

Located in the heart of the Alps, the University's sixteen faculties offer courses in all fields of study, and international rankings confirm its leading role in scientific research. To promote international exchange in research and teaching, the University collaborates with many international research and education institutions.

The University's Social Science campus opened in 1999. In its modern Social and Economic Sciences buildings, which feature spacious foyers particularly well suited to conferencing, you'll find three Faculties: Business; Economics and Statistics and Political Science and Sociology.

Dear graduate students and colleagues

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to the Graduate Student Conference, the largest meeting of its kind. We, the academic convenors and local organisers, hope you will find it a stimulating environment.

We are impressed by the number and the quality of Papers submitted, which cover a wide variety of fields in the political science discipline. Section Chairs, all of them graduate students, have done a great job arranging sessions and putting together a programme that meets the standards of an internationally recognised scientific conference. Many thanks for all the hard work!

We are also grateful to everyone involved in the event's organisation. Special thanks to Martina Füllrutter and Sven Jeschke, to Ekaterina Rashkova-Gerbrands, Annegret Eppler and Ellen Palli, our students, to the ECPR's Mary Farrell (graduate student affairs) and Simona Piattoni

We hope for stimulating debates, intensive exchange of ideas and intensive networking. Sure, you are here to do serious academic work, but you will definitely have fun, too!

The European Consortium for Political Research

An independent scholarly association that supports the training, research and cross-national co-operation of political scientists

Events

Each year, the ECPR organises the Joint Sessions of Workshops, Summer and Winter Schools in Methods and Techniques, the Research Sessions, and the General Conference. A Graduate Student Conference is held biennially; the next is July 2016 in Tartu, Estonia.

Publishing

Complementing these events, and in some cases publishing research presented at them, is the ECPR's extensive publishing portfolio. It has its own publishing imprint, ECPR Press, and co-publishes three leading journals: European Political Science, European Journal of Political Research, and European Political Science Review.

It also publishes two high-profile book series, Comparative Politics and Research Methods, in association with academic publishers.

Standing Groups & Research Networks

These are groups of researchers, in many cases formed at ECPR events, with a shared scholarly interest. Some are small, maintaining only a website and mailing list; some organise major conferences and summer schools, and produce their own publications. There are currently more than 40 Standing Groups, covering many sub-fields of the discipline. All are eligible to apply for grants to help with the organisation of the Group, and with the running of summer schools.

Prizes

Each year, the ECPR marks its members' achievements by awarding a number of prizes. These prizes cover the spectrum of a scholar's career, from the Jean Blondel PhD Prize to the Lifetime Achievement Award.

Membership

ECPR membership is institutional and currently comprises more than 340 universities concerned with the teaching and research of political science.

While membership is paid by the university, it is the individuals within it who receive the benefit; from Master's and PhD students, through to the most senior professor.

2014/15 calendar of events

4th Research Sessions

8 – 11 July 2014
University of Essex

The Research Sessions follow the format of the Joint Sessions but are much smaller, with fewer than 100 participants. Their purpose is to support groups (primarily ECPR members, with priority given to Standing Groups) who are at the early stages of a research project, or working on a book proposal.

9th Summer School in Methods and Techniques

24 July – 9 August 2014
University of Ljubljana

The Summer School offers high-quality training in a broad range of selected methods across all approaches in the social sciences. By combining the Summer and Winter Schools, students and junior researchers can follow, over a two-year period, training at introductory, intermediate and advanced levels. The School covers quantitative and qualitative designs as well as positivist and interpretative perspectives.

8th General Conference

3 – 6 September 2014
University of Glasgow

The ECPR's General Conference brings together scholars from across all regional and national borders, and all sub-disciplines of political science.

The academic programme takes the standard conference format of Sections of between three and eight Panels, organised around a common theme.

The Conference also offers roundtables, a plenary lecture and an interesting social programme.

4th Winter School in Methods and Techniques

13 – 20 February 2015
University of Bamberg

The ECPR's Winter School offers up-to-date methods training across the whole range of methodologies, and across different paradigms and approaches. Introductory and advanced courses take a one-week format. Intermediate courses are held at the Summer School (see left).

43rd Joint Sessions of Workshops

29 March – 2 April 2015
University of Warsaw

Participants meet with the same group of 15 – 20 people for the duration of this annual event, for substantive discussion and creation of new research groups and publications.

Attended by around 600 participants, the Sessions are a key benefit of membership: only those from Full-Member institutions can propose to direct a Workshop, while Associate Members can co-direct with a Full Member.

9th General Conference

26 – 29 August 2015,
University of Montreal

The ECPR's first-ever event outside Europe! Call for Section proposals goes live on 15 September 2014 – check www.ecpr.eu for details.

The ECPR offers funding for all its events – see the Funding section of www.ecpr.eu under the Membership tab.

ECPR Governance

The ECPR's Executive Committee (EC) is a Board of twelve Trustees, elected by the Council of Official Representatives every three years.

Drawn from ECPR Full-Member institutions, EC members are elected for a three-year term unless co-opted, in which case they must stand at the next election in order to continue for a further three years. Terms are staggered so that six members are elected every three years.

The Executive Committee is responsible for the day-to-day running of the Consortium as well as its long-term strategic development. To make this task more manageable, each member is given a portfolio for their three-year term, most of which have a sub-committee on which sits at least one other EC member and a Central Services counterpart.

The Executive Committee meets at least twice a year, at the Joint Sessions of Workshops in spring, and at the General Conference in early autumn.

ECPR Chair

The Chair is elected by the EC every three years, at the first meeting following election.

In recognition of the need to have a Chair experienced in ECPR business, in the preceding autumn the outgoing EC, elects a Chair Designate from those members who have another three years to serve. This person becomes the recommended Chair to the new EC, and ensures that the ECPR is led by someone experienced in working on the EC.

ECPR Director

In September 2013, Martin Bull of the University of Salford was appointed as the ECPR's first Director. Professor Bull manages Central Services staff, directs ECPR operations, and advises and assists the EC with the organisation's strategic direction.

Professor Bull has considerable experience in ECPR matters, having served as its Academic Director, 2006–2013, and on its Executive Committee 2003–2006.

Hans Daalder Prize 2014

Hans Daalder is one of the ECPR's founders, and this prize in his honour awards €1,000 for the most outstanding Paper presented at the Graduate Student Conference.

Call for nominations

The ECPR would like you to nominate a Paper from this conference that you feel is original and academically excellent. Please email Louise Soper on lhawk@essex.ac.uk with the Paper title and the presenter/author's name.

To be eligible for consideration, a Paper must receive at least two nominations (NB: you may not nominate your own work). Nominations will only be accepted for Papers uploaded to MyECPR, by participants from Full-Member institutions. The deadline for nominations is 1 September 2014.

The winner will be announced in December 2014 and the Prize presented at the next Joint Sessions of Workshops in Warsaw, spring 2015.

Plenary lecture

Seeing Like a Political Scientist

This lecture, given by the University of Innsbruck's Alan Scott, examines some of the dilemmas that face social scientists in general, and political scientists in particular.

The division of labour between the social sciences is relatively new and not set in stone. It is challenged by changes in the governance of higher education and science, and by developments in social sciences themselves. With respect to the former, there is growing demand from governments, external stakeholders and end users for demonstrable 'impact'. Here, the self-reproducing nature of disciplines and the internal organisation of universities are often seen as barriers to rather than facilitators of innovation.

For example, in a recent survey of Whitehall (UK government) civil servants in which they were asked which academic disciplines they found most useful, public policy came out on top. Yet public policy is not a discipline as traditionally understood, but rather an interdisciplinary area of study weakly institutionalised within universities.

With respect to internal (academic) developments, the inherited division of labour within the social sciences is being challenged by the growing influence of, for example, neo-institutionalism, which cuts across economics, political science and sociology. Swimming against these currents is the fact that the social sciences are becoming increasingly specialised and professionalised.

These developments create a tension and dilemma: how can we position ourselves in the face of these contradictory demands? Is a new constellation emerging or are the social sciences set to return to an older, pre-disciplinary state; something like the German tradition of Staatslehre?

© FWF – Hans Schubert

These are questions facing not just the disciplines themselves, but also those entering them who will carry them on through the next phase.

The city of Innsbruck

The Tyrolean capital Innsbruck enchants with its medieval charm, rugged alpine scenery and spectacular mountain views

Located in the heart of the Alps, in the Inn Valley on the German-Italian border, Innsbruck attracts up to two million tourists every year.

Playing host to nearly 30,000 students, the third-largest university city in Austria is a vibrant place for intellectual exchange and cultural encounters.

The Goldenes Dachl

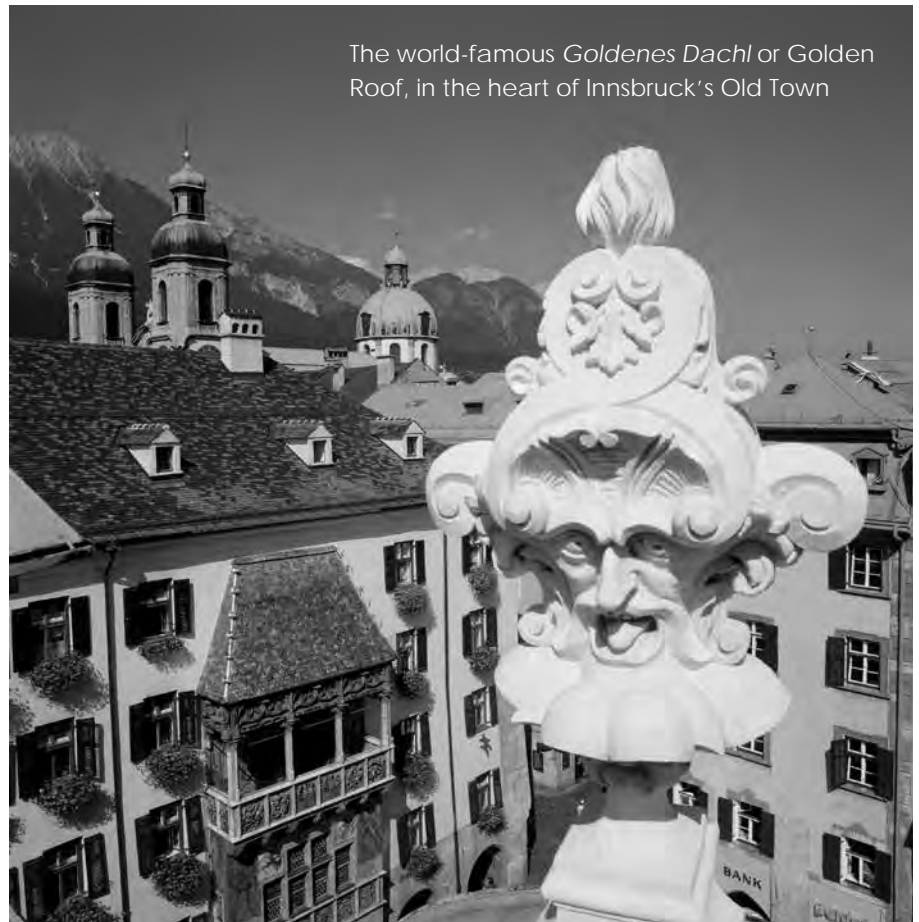

The Golden Roof (right), built in 1420 as the residence of the Tyrolean sovereigns, is Innsbruck's best known and most visible landmark. A late-gothic alcove balcony in the Old Town, it is covered with 2,657 fire-gilded copper tiles. To mark the beginning of the era led by Niklar Türling the Elder on behalf of the German king and future emperor Maximilian I, the magnificent bay window was added between 1497/98 and 1500. www.goldenes-dachl.at

The Bergisel Ski Jump Arena

Home of the Four Hills Tournament, this elegant building, designed by Iraqi-British architect Zaha Hadid, offers breathtaking views from its restaurant. www.bergisel.info/en

The Tyrol-Panorama

In 2011, the Bergisel gained another architectural attraction: the Tyrol-Panorama, a modern addition to the Tiroler Landesmuseum. The museum takes visitors on an exciting journey through Tyrolean history, leading up to the battle between Napoleonic

The world-famous Goldenes Dachl or Golden Roof, in the heart of Innsbruck's Old Town troops and Tyrolean rebels in 1809, which took place on the exact spot the Tyrol-Panorama is located today.

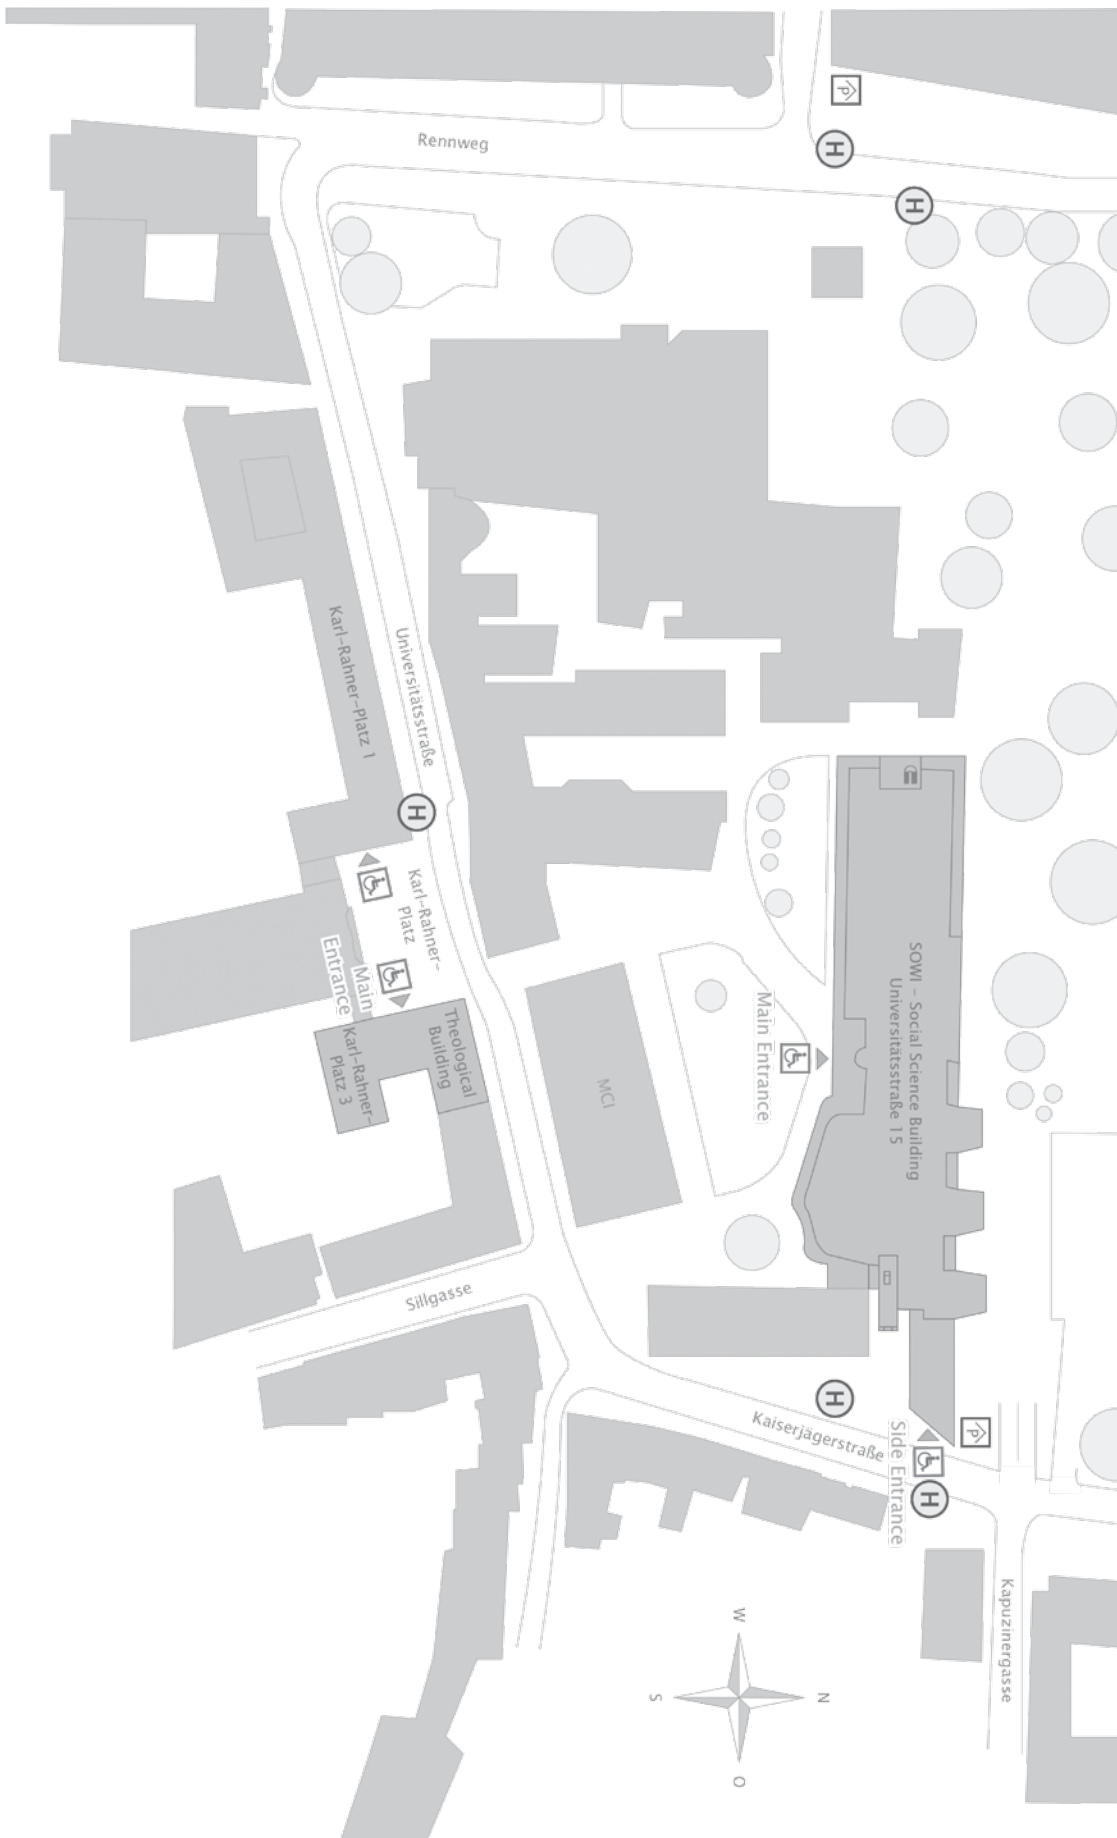

The museum's centrepiece, a 1,000-square metre 360° panoramic painting, retraces these dramatic events. The artwork, created in 1896, also documents many elements that make up the myth of Tyrol. Connected to the Tyrol-Panorama by an underground passage, the Kaiserjägermuseum documents Tyrolean military history, linking the museum's historical collection to the dramatic events at Bergisel. www.tiroler-landesmuseum.at

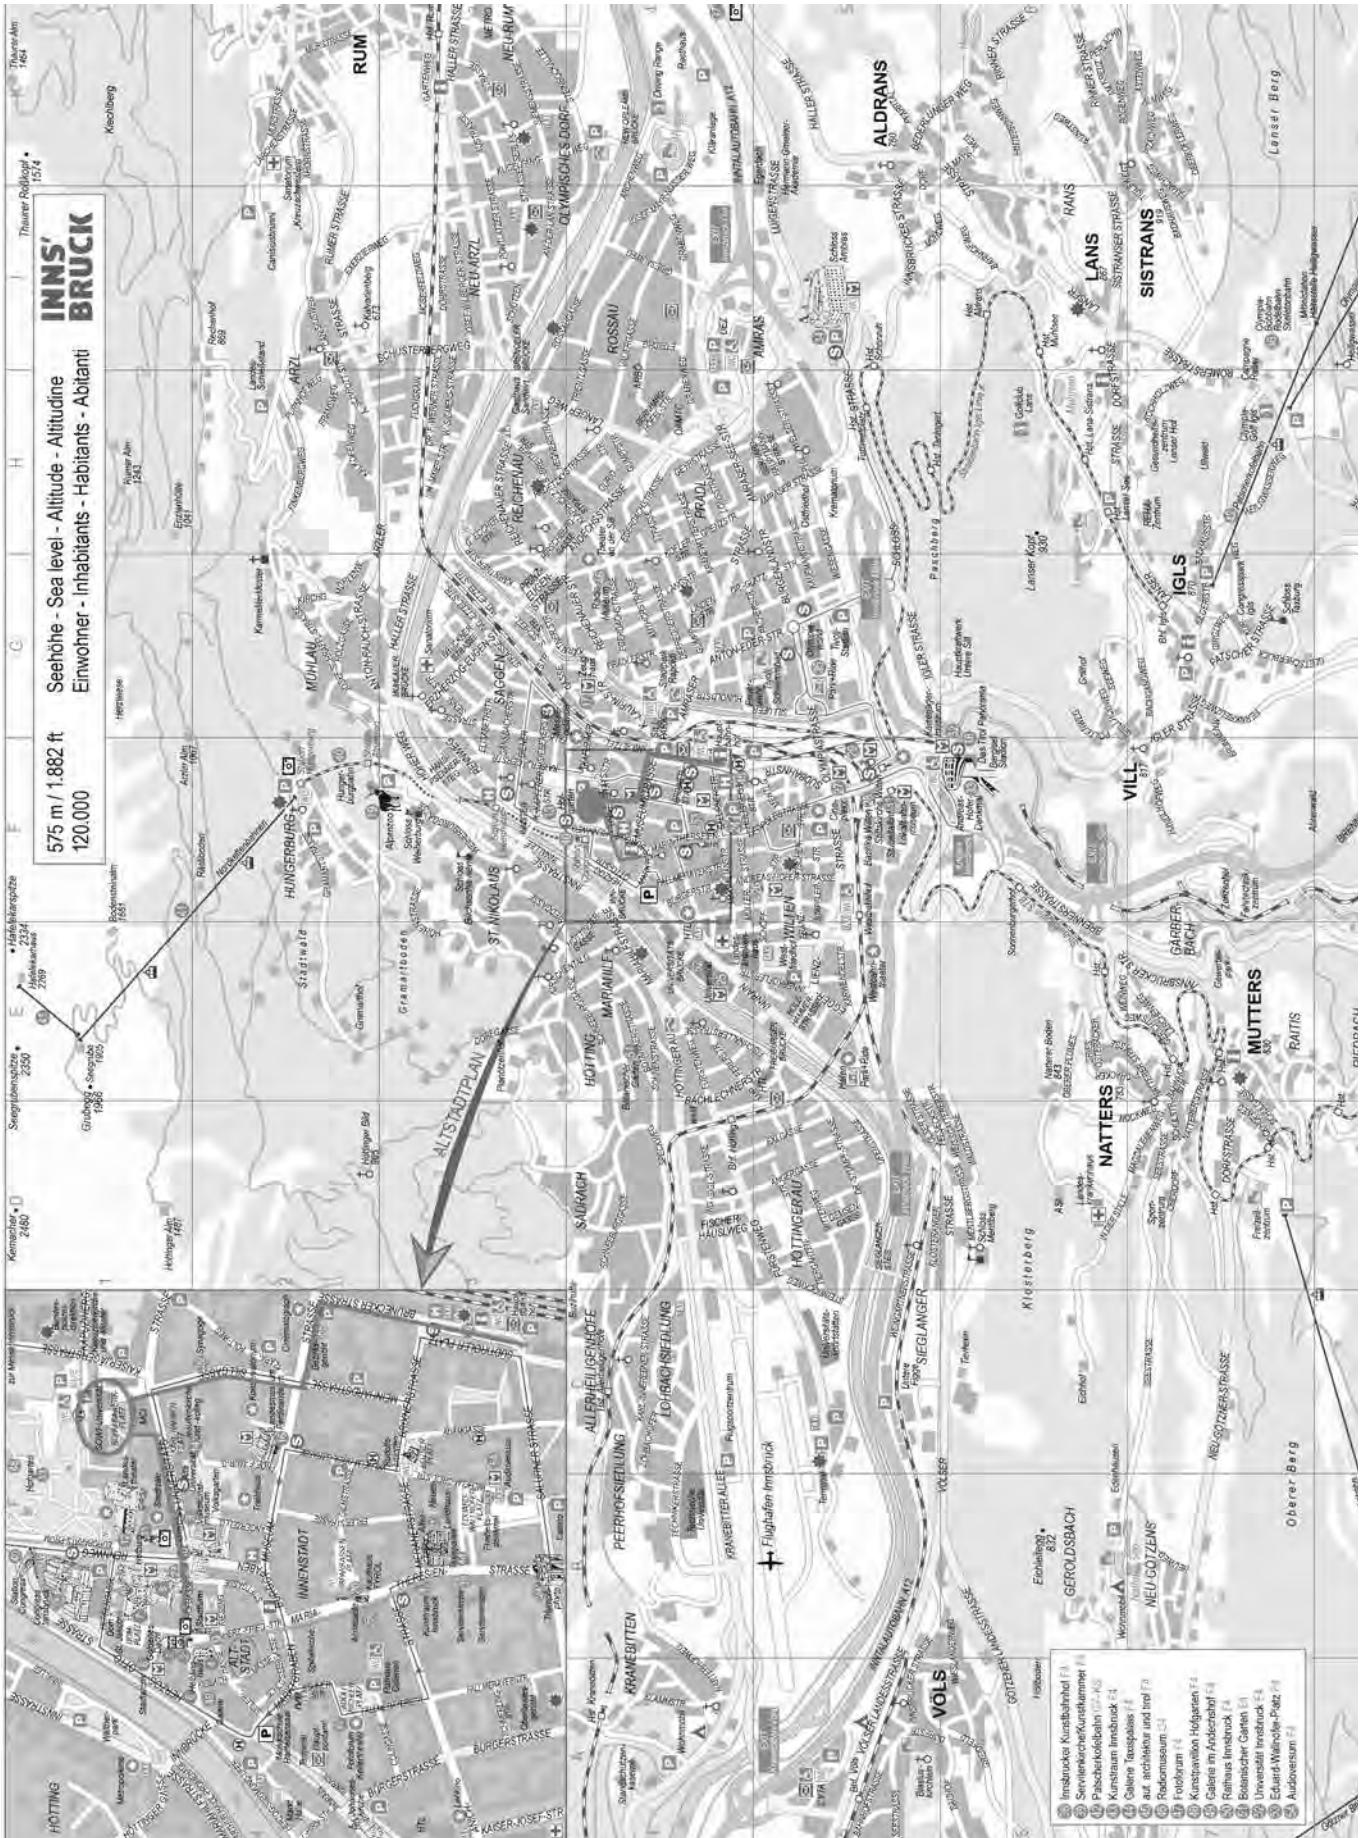

Nordkettebahnen cable railways

This new railway sets new standards in architecture, taking you from the city centre to the mountains in only twenty minutes. At the highest station (2,256m), visitors can enjoy an awesome view of Innsbruck on one side, pristine nature on the other. www.nordkette.com/en

Roundtables

Roundtable 1

Being on the Academic Job Market

Friday 4 July 11:00–12:30, Aula, Social Science Building

Topics in this roundtable include styles of interviews – the difference between North America and Europe, for example – and interview format. Identifies important characteristics graduate students should develop in order to secure an academic job.

Roundtable 3

Research Funding from the European Union

Saturday 5 July, 11:00–12:30, Madonnensaal, Karl-Rahner-Platz 3 (next to the church)

To complement national research programmes, activities funded by the EU must generally have ‘European added value’, a key aspect of which is transnationality.

Many research challenges are so complex that they can only be addressed at European level by cooperation of the best partners from several countries.

Next to the EU Framework Programme there are, particularly for PhD students, several European-level funding options that will be discussed in this roundtable.

Roundtable 4

How to Get Published

Saturday 5 July, 11:00–12:30, Aula, Social Science Building

Peer review is critical. This roundtable explains how to present a manuscript that meets basic scholarly principles, such as clarity, documentation, and appropriate length. Along with rhetoric and composition of papers, there will be discussion with scientists, editors, and a publishing director.

Chair

German Defence – a View on Politics

German Defence Politics

Edited by Ina Wiesner

2013, 399 pp., pb., € 69.00

ISBN 978-3-8487-0824-6

(Schriften der Akademie der Bundeswehr für Information und Kommunikation, vol. 30)

www.nomos-shop.de/21648

The book explains how German defence policy is formulated, and, ultimately, conducted. By taking a closer look at the roles of the parliament, the government, the Ministry of Defence and the civilian and military branches of the Bundeswehr the book focuses on the following topics:

- Actors involved in shaping German defence policy
- The institutional development of the Ministry of Defence and the services before and after the Cold War
- The management of defence
- The weapons acquisition process

- Public attitudes towards operations abroad
- The reform of German defence

German Defence Politics rests on the idea that any attempt to fully comprehend German defence policy has to take on a perspective on politics first. By focusing on institutions and processes within the field of German security and defence policy this book is breaking new grounds offering defence specialists as well as academics a comprehensive overview about the state of German defence today.

Diskursforschung in den Internationalen Beziehungen

Edited by Eva Herschinger and Judith Renner

On Parties, Party Systems and Democracy: Selected Writings of Peter Mair

Peter Mair; introduced by Ingrid van Biezen, with an intellectual portrait by Stefano Bartolini and Hans Daalder

A selection of celebrated comparativist Peter Mair's most influential writings, from considerations on the relevance of concept formation to the study of party systems and organisations, and from reflections on the democratic legitimacy of the EU to the future of party democracy.

Varieties of Political Experience: Power Phenomena in Modern Society

Gianfranco Poggi

The management of contemporary public affairs involves many centres of social power, engaged in complex, mutable relations that range from cooperation, to competition, to out-and-out conflict. This book emphasises the role played in these relations by political institutions in particular. It also considers the relations between politics at one end, and law, the public sphere, citizenship, and religion at the other.

Deliberative Mini-Publics: Involving Citizens in the Democratic Process

Kimmo Grönlund
André Bächtiger
Maija Setälä (Eds)

The first book-length account of this booming phenomenon reviews their variety, discusses their weaknesses, and recommends ways to make them a viable component of democracy. The editors take stock of deliberative mini-publics' diverse practices, look at their preconditions, processes and outcomes, and assess critically their lack of policy impact.

Choice, Rules and Collective Action: The Ostroms on the Study of Institutions and Governance

Elinor Ostrom and Vincent Ostrom; edited by Paul Dragos Aligica and Filippo Sabetti

This volume puts together works representing the main analytical and conceptual vehicles articulated by the Ostroms to create the Bloomington School. Their endeavours sought to 're-establish the priority of theory over data collection and analysis', and to better integrate theory and practice.

Matching Voters with Parties and Candidates: Voting Advice Applications in Comparative Perspective

Diego Garzia and Stefan Marschall (Eds)

Voting Advice Applications (VAAs) have become a widespread online feature of electoral campaigns in Europe, attracting growing interest from social scientists. This book is the first overview of the VAA phenomenon in comparative perspective. It addresses debates in VAA research, and aims to bridge the gap between VAA research and related fields.

Integrating Indifference: A Comparative, Qualitative and Quantitative Approach to the Legitimacy of European Integration

Virginie Van Ingelgom

Have Europeans become more Eurosceptic? This book suggests that reactions to European integration cannot be reduced simply to a rise in Euroscepticism, but that citizens' indifference needs also to be considered. The author explores the various faces of indifference, from fatalism, to detachment, via sheer indecision.
