Aims

The course aims to equip students with basic knowledge of feminist approaches to nationalism and how to engage in gendered analyses of it. The first half of the course consists of theoretical teaching and discussion of theories and interpretations of gender and nationalism. During the second part of the course, nationalism is approached through examples in various global contexts. Students are expected to engage with the topics in discussion and debate. At the end of the course students should understand the importance of feminist contributions to the study of nationalism and be able to integrate gender as a regular category of analysis.
